

39,000 Jobs, $40 Billion on the Line as Bureaucrats Endanger CA Health Care

Instead of working with providers, California's Office of Health Care Affordability (OHCA) is capping the resources hospitals have to spend on patient care, cutting even more than recent federal reductions to Medicaid. And worse, OHCA has provided zero assurance that consumers' monthly insurance premium payments will decrease as a result.

What do you get with 8 unelected bureaucrats + 0 accountability + 3.5% or lower cap on spending for hospital care **?

THE RESULT:

39,000+
jobs lost

High-paid, stable jobs that families rely on

$40 billion stripped from patient care

Reduced services, long wait times,
and outdated equipment

$67 billion in lost economic activity

Support for local businesses that work with hospitals

A health care system that can't meet patients' needs
